

SOCIAL PROTECTION AND CTP TRAINING COURSE

Part I: Introduction to Social Protection & CTP for Humanitarian Stakeholders

This session will cover social protection concepts, and introduce participants to the linkages between humanitarian assistance and social protection, and programmatic options for forging and using these links. It will also briefly explore the role of humanitarian actors in this process, and provide examples of how social protection systems have been used to deliver humanitarian assistance in different contexts. In general, the target audience for this training would be humanitarian stakeholders who have limited or no experience of working with social protection systems.

Please note that this course assumes prior knowledge of CTP concepts and application. It is not suitable for participants who have no experience of Humanitarian CTP.

Course Length

This is a half day face to face training course. Please note this course is also available as an online, self-directed e-learning course. You will need to register on Kaya to access the course, along with other CaLP online material. The online course takes approximately 1-2 hours to complete.

Key learning outcomes

At the end of the module participants will possess a better understanding of :

- Social protection and its components that are relevant from a humanitarian perspective;
- It's links with humanitarian cash based assistance and the potential role for humanitarian actors in making social protection systems responsive to shocks;
- Options to link humanitarian assistance with social protection and potential challenges; and
- Examples of scaling up social protection for humanitarian response in different contexts.

Intended Audience

The target audience for this training is humanitarian stakeholders who have limited or no experience of working with social protection systems. However, it is assumed that participants of this course will already have a working knowledge of Cash Transfer Programming